Ingredients

- ☐ 1 tablespoon caraway seeds
- ☐ 4 servings fleur del sel such as maldon salt, fleur de sel, or kosher salt
- ☐ 1 tablespoon coriander seeds
- ☐ 1 tablespoon cumin seeds
- ☐ 8 ounces feta cheese
- ☐ 2 bunches flat parsley fresh whole
- ☐ 4 servings flat parsely
- ☐ 0.3 cup olive oil extra virgin extra-virgin

- ☐ 6 radishes trimmed quartered
- ☐ 1 bunch spring onion quartered
- ☐ 2 cups walnuts (see Note below)

Equipment

- ☐ bowl
- ☐ frying pan

Directions

- ☐ Drain the feta and place it in a medium bowl. Grind the spices coarsely, if desired.
- ☐ Heat a small skillet over high heat.
- ☐ Add the coriander, cumin, and caraway seeds, and shake the pan continuously until the spices start to release their aroma, about 2 minutes. Immediately transfer to a bowl and pour in the olive oil.
- ☐ Add a pinch of coarse salt. Swirl the spices in the oil and steep for a few minutes.
- ☐ Pour the mixture over the feta. You can even work it in with your hands, gently crumbling the feta, if desired.
- ☐ Wash and dry the herbs. Trim the stems, but leave them intact.
- ☐ Place the herbs on a large platter in a few fluffy piles.
- ☐ Place the walnuts on the platter, along with the radishes and lavash.
- ☐ Transfer the feta to the platter and garnish it with coarse salt.
- ☐ For a single serving, pick up a few stalks of herbs. Tear the flatbread into a manageable piece and stuff it with the herbs, walnuts, a small piece of cheese, and a radish or two. Fold and eat like a sandwich.
- ☐ To remove bitterness from the walnuts, place them in a bowl, add boiling water to cover and a pinch of salt, and soak from 1 hour up to overnight. Before serving, drain and rinse until the water runs clear.
